

Galerie

A sculptural sofa by Brooklyn studio Ottra.
PHOTO: ETHAN HERRINGTON

Here's What Not to Miss at the 2022 Salon Art + Design in New York

Open from November 10 to 14 at Manhattan's Park Avenue Armory, the fair brings together 52 exhibitors from around the world

BY GEOFFREY MONTES

NOVEMBER 4, 2022

Every year, creatives and collectors are lured to the Manhattan's Park Avenue Armory for the annual Salon Art + Design, the buzzworthy fair produced by Sanford L. Smith + Associates that features an eclectic range of collectable treasures from around the world. Open from November 10 to 14, this year's edition brings together 52 international exhibitors, some of whom were unable to attend last year's show due to pandemic travel restrictions. It also marks the return of the Salon Conversations series after a three-year absence, with discussions featuring influencers from NYC Jewelry Week, 1stDibs, and more.

Aline Hazrian, Arpi Coffee table.
PHOTO: MAISON GERARD

Albert Cheuret, Pair of Art Deco Vases.
PHOTO: MAISON GERARD

1. Maison Gerard | Drill Hall

Headed by Benoist Drut, influential New York art and design gallery Maison Gerard will showcase work by a pair of artisans recently added to its illustrious roster: Antonio Pio Saracino and Jean-Luc Le Mounier. Master cabinetmaker Le Mounier will display his Vers Le Large cabinet, which was inspired by a dock, as well as a mirror and table titled Moon, from the Hamada series. Meanwhile, Italian architect Antonio Pio Saracino has created an armchair with stone accents, a marble-clad console, sconces, tables, and a green chandelier made of a thousand glass pieces. The booth will also feature work by gallery favorites such as Niamh Barry, Franck Evennou, Aline Hazarian, Douglas Fanning, and Achille Salvagni. Salvagni, in particular, is set to present a selection of limited-edition works as well as a rare bench by Gio Ponti. The collaboration between Maison Gerard and Achille Salvagni marks the beginning of an exciting new gallery called Achille Salvagni Atelier that will debut on Madison Avenue in mid-November.